By
Sophy
Henn

Jeanie's Grandma is BAD. Not bad like a vampire or a gangster or anything, more like . . . up to no good. Sometimes she can be a bit embarrassing but most of the time she's REALLY fun, especially when she gets Jeanie involved in her mischievous schemes. Everyone says she's old enough to know better . . . but she doesn't seem to care one bit. In fact, Jeanie thinks she might quite like it!

Poetry

Little Lemur Laughing
By
Joshua Seigal

Joshua Seigal is a rising star in the children's poetry world and this new collection of his poems will be a real crowd-pleaser. Many of them are crying out to be read aloud, Brontosaurus for example, with its Stomp Swamp Chomp chorus, or My Dog Eats Spaghetti, but others are quieter, to be read, considered and remembered. He has particular fun with shape poems, of which there are many, look out for the Fruit Bat and Bat's Fruit pairing! For children inspired to write their own poetry – and Seigal certainly makes it look fun – there are useful tips and suggestions included too

If The World Were 100 People
By
Jackie McCann

There are almost 8 billion humans living on Earth, but it's tricky to picture so many people! So instead, let's imagine the whole planet is a village where 100 people live – each person representing around 80 million people in the real world.

So what does our global village of 100 people look like? Are they all grown-ups? Are there more males or females? How many have black hair or blue eyes? What languages do they speak? Who can read and write? How many have access to the internet or have enough food to eat? Does everyone have access to electricity or clean water?

Seven children champion a different animal for the top spot. * Is it BEES 🐝🐝 as master pollinators, or BATS 🦇🦇 who are night-time predators as well as pollinators? * Is it ELEPHANTS 🐘🐘 who shape their landscapes and spread seeds, or BEAVERS 🦫🦫 who create watery habitats? * Is it TIGERS 🐅🐅 or SHARKS 🦈🦈 who keep populations in balance so there is food for all? * Is it tiny KRILL 🦱🦱, food for so many whales and sea creatures? There is lots of information about them, and other keystone species, plus photographs to see them up close and in their habitats.
